Information about Copyrighted Content

Some instruments administered as part of this study may contain in whole or substantially in part contents from copyrighted instruments. Reproductions of the instruments are provided as documentation for the analysis of the data associated with this collection. Restrictions on "fair use" apply to all copyrighted content. More information about the reproduction of copyrighted works by educators and librarians is available from the United States Copyright Office.

NOTICE WARNING CONCERNING COPYRIGHT RESTRICTIONS

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement.

F6. The next few questions are about the way you decide what you want out of life and how you go about trying to achieve your goals. For each situation below, two different strategies are listed. Please indicate whether your own strategy is more like the one listed in column A or the one listed in column B. While the way you do things may be different depending on the particular goal, and may include parts of both strategies, please circle the answer that is true for you overall.

My own strategy is...

SECTION H: PSYCHOLOGICAL TURNING POINTS

The following questions are about what we call "psychological turning points." Psychological turning points are major changes in the ways people feel or think about an important part of their lives, such as work, family, and beliefs about themselves and about the world. Turning points involve people changing their feelings about how important or meaningful some aspect of life is or how much commitment they give it.

H1.

H1.	With this definition in mind, in the past 12 months, did you have a psychological turning point that involved your job or career? This could be an experience like increasing the amount of effort you put into your job or career, cutting back on your job to spend more time with your family, deciding to change careers, now or in the future, or leaving your job to something different.

Н1а.	Briefly, what happened?
H1b.	What impact has this had on you?

H2.	Another kind of psychological turning point involves learning something new and very important about a person close to you. What these turning points have in common is the realization that this person is not the person you thought they were, either for the better or for the worse. This could be things like someone close to you making a major change for the better, finding out that he or she is doing something you disapprove of strongly, or learning that he or she is a stronger person than you thought.

First, in the past 12 months, have you had a psychological turning point like this where you learned something very upsetting about a close friend or relative?

H4. Sometimes things happen that force people to learn upsetting things about themselves. This can lead to a big change in your feelings about who you are, what you stand for, and what your life is all about. Did you have a major psychological turning point like this in the past 12 months?

H5.	What about the opposite situation: discovering important good things about yourself that changed your view of who you are, what you stand for, or how you should lead your life? Did you have a major psychological turning point like this in the past 12 months? 1. Yes> GO TO H5a
